

FinstreamTV Announces Suite of Free Financial Planning Tools

Admin User · February 24, 2026

FinstreamTV Announces Launch of Comprehensive Suite of Free Financial Planning Tools Empowering Individuals to Take Control of Their Financial Future Boston, MA – [February 24, 2026] – FinstreamTV, the leading streaming platform dedicated to boosting [...]

Boston, MA – [February 24, 2026] – FinstreamTV, the leading streaming platform dedicated to boosting financial literacy through expert-led videos and practical resources, today proudly announces the launch of its growing suite of free web-based financial planning tools available at <https://www.finstream.tv/financial-planning-tools/>. Designed to complement FinstreamTV's extensive library of over 950 educational videos featuring certified financial planners (CFPs), CPAs, attorneys, and other money experts, these practical calculators and applications help users translate financial knowledge into real-world action. The tools empower individuals—from first-time savers to seasoned investors—to manage their money more effectively, build wealth, reduce debt, and achieve long-term goals such as retirement planning, homeownership, emergency funds, and more. Key highlights of the suite include:

- FinStream AI Wealth Planner: An innovative, AI-powered tool that transforms user goals into personalized, actionable financial plans. It calculates exactly how much to save, projects timelines for reaching targets, and illustrates how different strategies can accelerate progress. Users receive a downloadable PDF plan suitable for personal use or discussions with a qualified financial advisor.
- A collection of free financial calculators focused on essential personal finance areas, including retirement planning, budgeting, debt payoff strategies, savings projections, and smarter money decision-making.

These tools are 100% free, user-friendly, and accessible directly via web browser—no downloads or subscriptions required. They deliver clarity, confidence, and data-driven insights to help users make informed choices and improve their financial lives. “That’s why we created the FinStream AI Wealth Planner and our broader suite of tools—to turn intentions into clear, actionable steps,” said Robert Powell, Co-Founder and Editor of FinstreamTV. “Whether you’re building an emergency fund, paying down debt, saving for a home, or preparing for retirement, these applications help you see exactly how much to save, when you’ll reach your targets, and how to optimize your progress. Combined with our expert video content, we’re making financial intelligence more practical and attainable for everyone. ”The suite continues to expand, with additional tools in development to cover even more aspects of personal finance. This launch builds on recent innovations like the AI Wealth Planner (introduced in late 2025) and reinforces FinstreamTV’s mission to increase financial literacy through accessible, expert-backed resources available on web, YouTube, Roku, Amazon Fire TV, and other platforms. Individuals are invited to explore the full suite today at <https://www.finstream.tv/financial-planning-tools/> and start building a stronger financial future.
